Left Header Put the information you want about yourself here

Right Header Idem

Your CV's Title

and the subtitle

The Rubric's Title

A Key	• This is an entry with a key. The key is displayed on the left, and you're reading the entry's contents. As you can see, this entry does not belong to a subrubric.
	A First Subrubric
A Key	• This entry belongs to the first subrubric. Before the sub- rubric, some space is added to separate it from the previous entry.
	• After the subrubric, some space is also added to separate it from the first entry. Note that this entry has no key. The entries contents are aligned together.
Another Key	<ul><li>This is another entry with a new key.</li><li>This is another entry, but this one has no key. Note the text bullet which serves as a visual clue, especially when several entries share the same key.</li></ul>
	A Second Subrubric
A Key	• This entry belongs to the second subrubric.
Another Key	<ul><li>This one also belongs to the second subrubric.</li><li>This is another entry with a new key.</li><li>This is another entry, but this one has no key.</li></ul>
A Key	<ul> <li>If you want to separate some entries from the subrubric above, you can for instance make an empty subrubric.</li> <li>You can include other rubrics below. Rubrics can even be</li> </ul> split across pages. The titles will then be repeated.