

Preamble

This file demonstrates how icite can be used to produce an index of passages cited in combination with Bib<sub>La</sub>T<sub>E</sub>X.

The relevant part of the preamble which is used here follows:

---

```
1 \usepackage[citecmd=autocite, defaultindex=none]{icite}
2 \IndexSubtypeAs{ancient}{pr-sources}
3 \bibinput{bibsampl}
4
5 \usepackage[xindy]{imakeidx}
6 \makeindex[name=pr-sources, title={Index locorum citatorum}]
7
8 \usepackage[style=oxnotes]{biblatex}
9 \addbibresource{bibsampl.bib}
```

Remarks

- (a) `citecmd=autocite` instructs icite to use the `\autocite` command to insert the citations in the body text.
- (b) `defaultindex=none` disables indexing by default.
- (c) `\IndexSubtypeAs{ancient}{pr-sources}` makes an exception for authors whose `entrysubtype` field matches the string `ancient` and instructs icite to have them indexed in an index named `pr-sources`.
- (d) To actually produce the index, `\printindex[pr-sources]` is needed at the end of the document.
